

Use Multi-Factor Authentication

Remember to use multi-factor authentication options being offered by tax software providers:

- All tax software providers are offering multi-factor authentication options on products for both taxpayers and tax professionals. Check your account's security features to activate this feature.
- Multi-factor authentication protects online accounts by requiring a second identity verification factor in addition to your username and password. For example, this second feature may be a code sent to your mobile phone.
- Multi-factor authentication provides a critical layer of protection for your online accounts.
