

Charities, Business Leagues, and Other Tax-Exempt Organizations, 2006

by Paul Arnsberger

Nonprofit charitable organizations exempt from income tax under Internal Revenue Code (IRC) section 501(c)(3) filed over 301,000 information returns for Tax Year 2006, an increase of 5 percent from 2005. These organizations held over $2.5 trillion in assets, an increase of 14 percent from the previous year. They reported nearly $1.4 trillion in revenue, two-thirds of which came from program services (Figure A). The statistics in this article exclude private foundations, most organizations with receipts totaling less than $25,000, as well as most churches and certain other types of religious organizations.

Business leagues and other organizations exempt under IRC section 501(c)(6) filed 30,705 Forms 990 and 990-EZ for 2006.¹ Assets reported by these organizations totaled $61.2 billion. Of the $37.9 billion in revenue reported by 501(c)(6) organizations, the majority came from program services ($15.5 billion) and membership dues and assessments ($13.5 billion).

The statistics for charities and other tax-exempt organizations reported in this article are based on data compiled from Form 990, Return of Organization Exempt from Income Tax, and Form 990-EZ, the short form version of this information return. The latter form may be completed by smaller organizations, those with end-of-year assets of less than $250,000 and gross receipts of $25,000 to $100,000. Only condensed income statements and balance sheets are required from filers of the short form, which accounted for 21 percent of the returns filed by organizations exempt under Code sections 501(c)(3) and (6) for Tax Year 2006.²

good, as opposed to a private interest. The activities of nonprofit organizations are limited in that they must further one or more of the purposes for which they were granted tax-exempt status. Organizations that are exempt under IRC Section 501(c)(3) are those whose purposes are religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational. In practice, these categories cover a broad range of activities. Examples of the varied exempt purposes of these charitable organizations include nonprofit hospitals, educational institutions, youth organizations, community fundraising campaigns, public charities, local housing organizations, historical societies, and environmental preservation groups. These organizations may not allow net earnings to inure to the benefit of ² Unless otherwise indicated, data presented in this article were reported by both Form 990 and 990-EZ filers. The tables at the end of the article separate data by type of form. Detailed data for Form 990 filers are provided in Tables 1, 2, and 3, while Form 990-EZ data are found in Table 4.

a shareholder or individual. Activity attempting to influence legislation cannot be a substantial part of an organization's activities, and the organization may not intervene in a political campaign on behalf of, or in opposition to, any candidate.³ Generally, a donor's contribution to one of these organizations is tax deductible.

Of the 845,786 active nonprofit charitable organizations recognized by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) under Code section 501(c)(3), 301,214 filed Form 990 or 990-EZ returns for accounting periods that began in Calendar Year 2006.⁴ Those not required to file included churches and certain other religious organizations, as well as organizations with annual gross receipts totaling less than $25,000.⁵ Nonprofit private foundations, which are also tax-exempt under Code section 501(c)(3), are required to file separately on Form 990-PF, Return of Private Foundation.⁶

Financial Characteristics of Nonprofit Charitable Organizations

Although 65 percent of the returns filed by section 501(c)(3) organizations for 2006 were filed by small organizations, those with assets of less than $500,000, these organizations held less than 1 percent of the total assets and reported just 4 percent of total revenue (Figure B). In comparison, large organizations, those with assets of $10 million or more, represented just over 6 percent of the returns filed, but accounted for 91 percent of the total asset holdings and over 84 percent of the total revenue reported.

The nonprofit charitable organizations in this study reported total revenue of nearly $1.4 trillion for 2006. Program service revenue, totaling $920.2 billion, was the major source of revenue for these organizations. This revenue comprises the fees collected by organizations in support of their tax-exempt purposes and includes income such as tuition and fees at educational institutions, hospital patient charges (including Medicare and Medicaid payments), and admission fees collected by museums or community performing arts groups, and YMCA/YWCA. Figure C illustrates the types of revenue reported by organizations of different sizes. Large organizations received 71 percent of their total revenue from program service revenue, while small organizations received well over half of their revenue from contributions, gifts, and grants.

⁴ Data presented in this article are from Tax Year 2006 Forms 990 and 990-EZ filed in Calendar Years 2007 and 2008. The total number of nonprofit charitable organizations, including those not required to file Form 990 or Form 990-EZ, was obtained from the IRS Exempt Organizations Business Master File (December 2006) and does not include private foundations filing Form 990-PF, Return of Private Foundation.

⁵ The $25,000 filing threshold is an average of an organization's gross receipts over the previous three years.

On Form 990 (but not on Form 990-EZ), expenses for tax-exempt organizations are grouped into four major categories: program services, fundraising, management and general, and payments to affiliates. Program service expenses are those associated with activities that further an organization's exempt purpose; fundraising expenses are those incurred in soliciting contributions, gifts, and grants; and management and general expenses include those administrative and overhead costs that are not specifically related to program services or fundraising activities. The three categories described above are broken down by specific functional expense items such as grants and allocations, salaries and wages, professional fees, and supplies. (See Table 2 at the end of this article.) The fourth major category, payments to affiliates, which includes distributions to organizations closely related to the reporting organizations, such as dues paid by local chapters to State and national agencies, are not broken down into specific functional expenses. Program service expenses accounted for the vast majority (86 percent) of total expenses reported by nonprofit charitable filers of Form 990; management and general expenses totaled 12 percent; and fundraising expenses and payments to affiliates, combined, accounted for less than 2 percent.

Compensation

Figure D shows compensation data reported by nonprofit charitable organizations on Form 990. Salaries, wages, and benefits are presented for executives, such as officers, directors, trustees, and key employees, as well as other employees. (Data from Form 990-EZ are not included in this section because that return does not distinguish between types of compensation nor types of employee.) For Tax Year 2006, nonprofit charities reported $507.4 billion in compensation and benefits on Form 990. The majority of this, 81 percent, was in the form of other employee salaries and wages. Salaries of executives such as officers, directors, trustees, and key employees totalled $17.3 billion. In addition to salaries and wages, nonprofit charities reported $78.8 billion in benefits paid to their employees and executives on Form 990. Examples of these benefits include contributions to pension, health, and insurance welfare plans; payments to deferred compensation and severance plans; fringe benefits; and expense account reimbursements.

Compensation and benefits represented a significant portion of the total expenses reported by nonprofit charitable organizations on the Form 990, over 41 percent. When viewed by size of organization and type of employee, certain patterns emerge. For small organizations, those reporting assets less than $100,000, other employee salaries, wages, and benefits represent just 19 percent of total expenses for Tax Year 2006; large organizations with assets of at least $10 million, reported 40 percent of their expenses in the form of employee salaries, wages, and benefits. For executives, this compensation pattern is reversed. Salaries and benefits paid to executives such as officers, directors, trustees, and key employees, accounted for over 8 percent of total expenses at small organizations, but slightly less than 1 percent at large organizations.

Nonprofit Charitable Organizations Classified by NTEE Codes

The National Taxonomy of Exempt Entities (NTEE) is a classification system developed by the National Center for Charitable Statistics, which classifies organizations by institutional purpose and major programs and activities.⁷ It recognizes 26 major groups, which can be aggregated into 10 program categories, as shown in Figure E. The organizations were clas-NOTES: Data are from Forms 990 and 990-EZ for nonprofit charitable organizations that are tax-exempt under Internal Revenue Code section 501(c)(3) and exclude private foundations, most organizations with receipts less than $25,000, as well as most churches, and certain other types of religious organizations. Detail may not add to totals because of rounding.

sified for statistical purposes by the IRS Statistics of Income Division on the basis of information provided in the “Statement of Program Service Accomplishments” section of Forms 990 and 990-EZ.

Health-related organizations comprised the largest NTEE category in terms of financial activity, with 38 percent of all assets and 55 percent of all revenue reported by charitable organizations for 2006. Examples of organizations in the health category are hospitals; nursing facilities; health support services, such as blood banks and emergency services; health care financing activities; substance abuse treatment services; organizations active in the prevention or treatment of diseases; and medical research. Program service revenue was the dominant source of income for health organizations, accounting for 87 percent of total revenue.

The education program category, which includes colleges and universities, elementary and secondary schools, correspondence schools, libraries, and educational testing services, ranked a close second in terms of assets with $856.4 billion. At $275.6 billion, total revenue reported by these organizations was considerably less than those in the health category.

The largest NTEE category in terms of returns filed comprised human service organizations, which accounted for 38 percent of all Forms 990 and 990-EZ filed for 2006. This category comprises organizations in several classifications performing a broad range of services focused on specific needs within the community: housing and shelter programs; job training and placement services; public safety, disaster preparedness, and relief services; recreation and sports programs; crime prevention and legal services; and multipurpose organizations which provide a broad range of social or human services to individuals and families. Program service revenue ($91.6 billion) and contributions, gifts, and grants received ($70.2 billion) together represented 91 percent of the total revenue reported by these organizations.

Business Leagues and Other Organizations Tax-Exempt under IRC Section 501(c)(6)

Internal Revenue Code (IRC) Section 501(c)(6) grants tax-exemption to “Business leagues, chambers of commerce, real-estate boards, boards of trade, or professional football leagues (whether or not administering a pension fund for football players).” In addition to those types of organizations named in the code, Section 501(c)(6) covers economic development associations, professional societies, and certain insurance associations. Examples of 501(c)(6) organizations include: the American Medical Association, the National Football League, the National Association of Securities Dealers, the American Association of Certified Public Accountants, and the PGA Tour.

As with all tax-exempt organizations, the net earnings of those described in Section 501(c)(6) may not inure to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual. Additionally, an organization applying for tax-exempt status under Section 501(c)(6), must show that its activities will be “devoted to improving business conditions of one or more lines of business as distinguished from performing particular services for individual persons,” and “that the conditions of a particular trade or the interests of the community will be advanced.”⁸ In terms of revenue, IRS regulations require that organizations’ activities are “primarily supported by membership dues and other income from activities substantially related to its exempt purpose.”⁹

Unlike nonprofit charitable organizations, business leagues and similar organizations exempt under Section 501(c)(6) may legally participate in some political activity on behalf of, or in opposition to, candidates for public office. They may also engage in lobbying for legislation that advances the common business interest of the organization’s members. Donors’ contributions to one of these organizations are not tax deductible as a charitable contribution. However, they may be deductible as trade or business expenses, if they are ordinary and necessary in the conduct of the taxpayer’s trade or business.

Highlights of 501(c)(6) Organization Financial Data

Business leagues and similar organizations exempt under IRC section 501(c)(6) filed 30,705 Forms 990 and 990-EZ for Tax Year 2006. This figure represents fewer than half of the total number of active 501(c)(6) organizations recognized by the IRS. Organizations with total gross receipts below the filing threshold and some non-compliant organizations comprise the difference. The organizations that did file information returns reported total assets of $61.2 billion and total revenue of $37.9 billion for Tax Year 2006.

Figure F shows data for different types of IRC Section 501(c)(6) organizations classified by NTEE code. Business leagues and chambers of commerce, which are grouped together in the NTEE taxonomy, filed 13,794 Forms 990 and 990-EZ on which they reported $19.2 in assets and $13.1 billion in revenue. The second most common type of 501(c)(6) filers were professional societies and associations with nearly 12,000 returns and $17.9 billion and $14.7 billion in assets and revenue, respectively. Insurance-related organizations, which include ‘guaranty associations’—organizations created under State statute to pay claims against insolvent fire and casualty insurance companies—represented a small fraction of 501(c)(6) filers, but accounted for over one quarter of all assets held. By far, the largest 501(c)(6) filer, in terms of assets, was the Michigan Catastrophic Claims Association (MCCA); an organization that reimburses the state’s no-fault auto insurers for personal injury benefits that exceed a certain threshold. For Tax Year 2006, MCCA reported over $10.7 billion in assets.

Summary

For 2006, nonprofit charitable organizations (excluding private foundations) tax-exempt under section 501(c)(3) reported $2.5 trillion in total assets and $1.4 trillion in revenue. The number of returns filed by these organizations was 301,214, including both Form 990 and the shorter Form 990-EZ.

Program service revenue, the fees received for the charitable programs conducted by tax-exempt organizations, was $920.2 billion for Tax Year 2006. It represented nearly two-thirds of the total revenue reported by charitable organizations. A second source of revenue, contributions, gifts, and grants, which totaled $303.1 billion, accounted for more than one-half of the total revenue of organizations with asset holdings of less than $1 million dollars, but for a much smaller share of the total revenue of the larger organizations.

Using the National Taxonomy of Exempt Entities codes (which classify organizations by institutional purpose and major programs and activities), health care was the predominant major category, accounting for 38 percent of assets and 55 percent of total revenue reported by nonprofit charitable organizations.

Business leagues and other organizations exempt under IRC section 501(c)(6) filed 30,705 information returns with the IRS, on which they reported $60.2 billion in assets and $37.9 billion in revenue. Eighty-three percent of the returns filed by 501(c)(6) organizations came from business leagues, chambers of commerce, and professional associations. Insurance-related organizations, while few in number, accounted for over 25 percent of the assets reported for Tax Year 2006.

Data Sources and Limitations

The statistics in this article are based on a sample of the Tax Year 2006 Forms 990, Return of Organization Exempt From Income Tax, and Forms 990-EZ, Short Form Return of Organization Exempt From Income Tax. Organizations were required to file the 2006 form when their accounting periods ended any time between December 31, 2006, and November 30, 2007. The sample did not include private foundations, which were required to file Form 990-PF. Most churches and certain other types of religious organizations were also excluded from the sample because they were not required to file Form 990 or Form 990-EZ. The sample included only those returns with average receipts of more than $25,000, the filing threshold.

The sample design was split into two parts: the first sampling frame contained all returns filed by organizations exempt under section 501(c)(3); the second sampling frame comprised a pool of all returns filed by organizations exempt under sections 501(c)(4) through (9). Organizations tax-exempt under other Code sections were excluded from the sample frames. The data presented were obtained from returns as originally filed with the Internal Revenue Service. They were subjected to comprehensive testing and correction procedures in order to improve statistical reliability and validity. However, in most cases, changes made to the original return as a result of either administrative processing or taxpayer amendment were not incorporated into the database.

The two samples were classified into strata based on the size of end-of-year total assets, with each stratum sampled at a different rate. For section 501(c)(3) organizations, a sample of 16,872 returns was selected from a population of 305,122. Sampling rates ranged from 1.19 percent for organizations reporting total assets less than $500,000 to 100 percent for organizations with total assets of $50,000,000 or more. The second sample contained 7,237 records selected from the population of 114,563 returns filed by organizations exempt under sections 501(c)(4) through (9). Sampling rates ranged from 1.10 percent for organizations reporting total assets less than $150,000 to 100 percent for organizations with assets of $10,000,000 or more. The filing populations for these organizations included some returns of terminated organizations, returns of inactive organizations, duplicate returns, and returns of organizations filed with tax periods prior to 2006. However, these returns were excluded from the final sample and the estimated population counts.

Because the data are based on samples, they are subject to sampling error. In order to use these statistics properly, the magnitude of the sampling error, measured by the coefficient of variation (CV), should be taken into account. Figure G shows CVs for selected financial data. A discussion of methods for evaluating the nonsampling error can be found later in this issue—see SOI Sampling Methodology and Data Limitations.

*Estimate(s) should be used with caution because of the small number of sample returns on which they are based.

[1] Excludes private foundations, most churches, and certain other types of religious organizations.

NOTES: Organizations with end-of-year total assets under $250,000 and gross receipts under $100,000 could elect to file Forms 990-EZ rather than Forms 990. Data exclude most organizations with receipts less than $25,000. Detail may not add to totals because of rounding.
